Reading task: To be able to sequence a story

Description: Today, we're focusing on sequencing and retelling the story. Sequencing means when you put the story in the correct order. Retelling means when you simply tell the story to someone.

Task: Today I would like you to do two things:

1. Firstly, I would like you to put the story cards in the correct order of how they happened in the story. (You can make your own story cards to help you to retell the story if you'd like to).

2. Then I would like you to retell the story to someone at home. You could use the video of the author telling the story to help you.

Year 2 extra challenge: You might like to have a go at innovating the story. This is when you change parts of a story. You might like to retell the story but change the characters, the setting or even the things that the characters do.
